African Exploration.

The explorations of Stanley in the heart of Africa are of the utmost geo-graphical interest and importance. He graphical interest and importance. He is a plucky, clear-headed man, who pushes his way through difficulties like a steam engine through a snow drift; and, considering the delays and slowness of former expeditions, the rapidity of his movements and the promptness of his communications are quite remarkable. He has too much business on hand to be sick, and is too active and energetic and violant to be entrumed by the treecher. vigilant to be entrapped by the treacher-ous natives or captured by the malaria. It is quite evident that the natives stand in awe of this man, who seems to be a sort of locomotive in boots, though they sort of locomotive in boots, though they shoot his men when out of his sight without hesitation or remorse, and his two letters came stained with the life-blood of one of the Khedive's officers. Stanley has now demonstrated by actual observation and surveys that Livingstone, whose health and mind failed in the last years of his long. African science was years of his long African sojourn, was mistaken in supposing the Victoria Ny-anza was a chain of five lakes connected with each other. He finds that Speke, whose explorations were made in 1862, was right in his opinion that the Victoria Nyanza is one body of water; but what Speke took for two islands Stanley finds Speke took for two islands Stanley finds are peninsulas in this great inland sea. This is undoubtedly the upper reservoir of the Nile, and should future explorations confirm the importance of the River Shimeeyou we shall have the key to the whole Nile system, and the mystery of Africa will be henceforth an open secret. It is a matter of national pride that these final explorations are made by an American, who, though he follows an American, who, though he follows the trail of distinguished explorers, seems to have a capacity of gathering up the results of their discursive discoveries and observations, and combining and correcting them, and supplementing them with original explorations of his own, which are quite as important as any that have been made. have been made.

These African explorations are of vastly more consequence and practical utility than anything that has been or is likely to be discovered in the Arctic regions, where so much treasure has been spent and so many lives have been thrown away. Africa is not only a puzzle to geographers: it is now a problem for civilization to solve, and throws down its geographers: it is now a problem for civilization to solve, and throws down its challenge to the statesmanship and humanity of the globe. It lies in the highway of commerce, inviting the intercourse of all nations. Its fertile soils and salubrious climates and valuable productions give it a vast importance, which is increased by its accessibility on all sides. The cradle of civilization and the seat of commerce for centuries, it is now sparsely peopled, and to all practical intents is a virgin continent inviting immigration and furnishing almost unlimited scope to the enterprise of civilized man. What shall be done with it and for it are questions which will ask themselves with increasing frequency and force in coming years. Mr. Dalton has suggested that an attempt be made to colonize it with Chinese. The plan has plausibility. It has been found that the Chinese who ave settled in the Oceanic Islands have developed quite remarkable faculties of thrift and enterprise and government developed quite remarkable faculties of thrift and enterprise and government thrift and enterprise and government and have improved considerable on the home type. But with Europe over-crowded with population and all her great cities suffering from an excess of poor and perishing classes, it certainly seems that the key of African civilization aced not be sought in eastern Asia among the Mongolian races. It only wants the ability to organize colonization on a grand scale and carry it out with the appliances of modern science and art and appliances of modern science and art and the modern spirit of humanity to make Africa a power in the civilized world and a means of renovating Europe.—Daily

The Jews.

Some curious, and in some respects, surprising, particulars have lately been collected and published in a French paper, respecting the Jews. Although the Israelites hold such an important place and finance and are in trade, commerce and finance, and are to be met with in every quarter of the world, it appears that they are to be found in least numbers in some of the st numbers in some of the most commercial countries, and in most numbers in some of the least prosperous and enterprising states. Moreover, widely as they are scattered, and numerous as they appear to be, it seems from the statistics in question that the census of the whole race falls short of five millions of souls. In France, where there exist little or none of the stupid and barbarous prejudice against the Jews which prevails in some countries, and where one would think there was a wide field for the neculiar talents of the race, there for the peculiar talents of the race, there are only 46,000 Jews. In America, apparently a still more favorable country, parently a still more favorable country, there are only one hundred and twenty thousand Israelites. On the other hand, in wretched, unprosperous and downtrodden Poland the Jews are to be found in greatest number, one out of every seven of the inhabitants being a Hebrew. One can understand that there should be a few Jews in Spain, but it is surprising they should be almost as rare in Belgium. In Sweden there are comparatively few Jews, but they abound in Hamburg, Austria, and Roumania in the proportion of one to every twenty-four inhabitants. In Hamburg and Austria there is abundant employment for their talents, but in Roumania there cannot be any great scope for their commercial and financial instincts. Ireland always boasts of being the only country in the world in which the Jews were never persecuted—and, indeed, whether at home or abroad, the Irish always manifest a certain respect Irish always manifest a certain respect for the Israelites—but Ireland has hardly had the opportunity of persecuting the race, for even at the present day there are not three hundred Jews in the whole are not three hundred Jews in the whole country. Norway stands lowest on the list, after Ireland, there only being twenty-five Jews in that country. An interesting addition to these statistics (if it were possible to secure it) would be the amount of wealth in the hands of the less than five millions of Jews that abide upon, if they do not inherit the earth. Considering the enormous wealth possessed by only a few well-known indipossessed by only a few well-known indi-viduals of the race, such a return would doubtless show a high average per head.— London Globe,

Want Nothing Better.

As to the CHARTER OAK COOKING STOYE, we can truthfully say that it is as near perfection as any stoye we can expect to find; we want nothing better, and do not ever expect to find any other as good.

THOUSANDS SPEAK .- Vegetine is ac knowledged and recommended by physici-ans and apothecaries to be the best purifier and cleanser of the blood yet discovered, and thousands speak in its praise who have been restored to health.

BUTTER and cheese are almost indis pensable articles of food. Properly used they are nutritions and healthy; but an in-ordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Parsons' Purgative Pills, judici-ously used, will remove both of these troubles.

SCHENCE'S MANDRAKE PHAS, FOR THE CURE OF LAYER COMPLAINT, ETC.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PHLES, FOR THE CURE OF LIVER COMPLAINT, ETC.

These Pills are alterative and produce a healthy action of the liver without the least dancer, as they are free from calomel and yet more efficacions in restoring a healthy action of the liver.

These remedies are a certain cure for Consumption, as the Pulmonic Syrup ripens the natter and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, create a healthy bile, and remove all diseases of the liver, often a cause of Consumption. The Sea Weed Tonic gives tone and strength to the stomach, makes a good digestion, and embles the organs to form good blood; and thus creates a healthy circulation of healthy blood. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if asken in time, and the use of the medicines persevered in.
